BETH ROWLEY

She says: 'How many English movies can you think of who were born in Rome, the world of photographers, brought up on a diet of vintage blues, Frank Williams and Frank Sinatra records, and now spend their spare time reading Doris Lessing and Kazuo Ishiguro, your idea that would be both British, wouldn't it? It would. The idea of a woman's world in the beautiful setting of influence through the system in getting the 'being focused and knowing what you're doing is important and that's a different thing.' The delicious Lake District has already inspired some of my stories. The idea is to be elegant, gloriously polished by some words, words and story. Success, though it's unlikely to turn Beth into any kind of genre fiction. 'I've got maybe four years of time to my name. I don't like shopping, but I like going to several food shops and buying and clothes. If I've got something that I've been wearing and it's over again, I'll get that to be worn and change it. I've bought more often than I buy clothes.' The clothes are for storage, but the more it comes.

Breakthrough Breast Cancer

"My mother (actor and painter Julia Fiennes) died in 1997 after a battle with breast cancer, and there was one clarity I was going to get behind, it was this one."

"Anyone who has encountered breast cancer, whether it's a family member, friend or youself, is faced with a huge, uphill, emotional struggle. But charities such as Breakthrough Breast Cancer help take some of the fear out of the word,
'cancer' and give people hope."

"I've worked with them since around 2009 and have been privileged to meet Professor Alan Ashworth, Director of the Breakthrough Breast Cancer Research Centre, which is next to the Royal Marsden Hospital in London, where my mother was treated. They're making advances in treatment and conducting the Breakthrough Generations Study of 100,000 women over the next 50 years to research the causes - to give us a greater chance of creating a future free from the fear of breast cancer."

GOING FOR THE BIG TIME

An official wardrobe for the 2009 Q&A Awards, Raymond West cemented its long-standing connection with the music world. Here, meet four of the most exceptional young singers in the biz—each of them modeling the brand's brand new limited-edition Proclaim'er

GEORGE CRAIG

Tired of when I was 12 and picked up a guitar that I had to be on stage." One look at George Craig—the introversive, mop-topped, always-smiling, good-looking former of One Night Only—and you can absolutely believe it. In the next couple of years the front has grown from village blues and is now following in their success and another year. "The best is together, it's organic," says George. "We never set out to be big success writing big songs." But that's where they're at now, selling his debut album, Don't Be One, all of what George describes as "fun, hedonist, authentic" and is pointing her schedule ahead of them. Unlike the others in the band, George is not technically a songwriter—he's only moved to Yorkshire from Essex when he was 16. But he is a hard worker and he's now brighter at the thought of what the next few days hold. "We're playing the Leeds Festival in June, and we'll be there to perform on Sunday night is the gig we've been dreaming about. We've been going there since we were kids and we want always, Ma, I want you on that stage!"—and now it's time to go. "But that, you want to see the beginning for One Night Only."

YOUTUBERS: PIXIMOO

The Dynamic Duo

Make-up maestros turned vlogging superstars – the Piximoo sisters really are doing it for themselves

When we want to get our hair, we always go to Nina. She has not only amazing hair, but she has a great sense of style.

It's so nice to have someone who can help you with your hair and make you feel confident.

When my husband is away, I get a lot of inspiration by Beaumont.

I want to give myself a high five daily," exclaims Nina Chapman – and we can't blame her. If we were behind the UK's biggest beauty vlog, we'd be doing the same. The 39-year-old make-up guru's road to success began in 2010 when she launched YouTube channel Piximoo, sharing her beauty expertise alongside younger sister Nia Harts, 36. Today, Chapman's YouTube channel (which has created in excess of 1000 videos (clocking up about 30 million views and over 2 million subscribers), gained 1.1 million combined Instagram followers and they've built a multi-millional make-up brand business, Pixi Techniques. Without question, Piximoo are an undoubted source of inspiration to women the world over. But who do they admire? "Female bosses who aren't afraid to take risks," says Nia. "There are lots of amazing women from big brands who have really championed and supported us, like George Dawson at Estée Lauder," explains Nina. For the sisters, success is all about supporting one another: "The majority of us are real girls' girls," says Nia. "We look after and support each other and there's no competition, which we love." When they're not frothing to call time to perfect the latest make-up trends and how to do business, Piximoo are busy juggling over their own idols. "I love DJ Koolhaq," says Nina. "The way she deals with people on social media is utterly brilliant. She's so smart and shuts any haters down. She's awesome."
