PUMPKIN BOWLING

This is a seasonal take on ten-pin bowling. In the run-up to Halloween, use ten small drink bottles for pins. You can give them the appearance of ghosts by putting in 5cm white glue paste and a drop of paint thinner and dusting. Add faces to the monsters with black marker pens. You'll also need small paperpins both flat ones for bowling balls. If you can't find any, straggs work just as well.

Add some green food water to each bottle so they don't topple over too easily. Arrange them in a triangle and mark out the boundaries of your 'alley' with rope and boughs, or string if you are indoors, plus a starting line. Then, following the rules of ten-pin bowling, each player gets two goes at bowling to try to knock down as many ghost 'pins' as possible.

THE MUMMY CHASE

You'll need a garden to play this game for a quiet area and understanding neighbour, plus a couple of hot tubs.

Divide the players into teams. Each team contains a mummy. Give each team a couple of hot tubs and you're in game. Halloween-themed music. As the music plays, team members must stay their mummies from head to toe, leaving just a small gap for the eyes and nose. Teams must set up all three hot tubs.

Once the music finishes, it's complete, carry your pins across. Set up a starting and finishing line for a race between the mummies, who must complete it without their wrappings coming off. If the paper starts to unravel mid-race, the mummies must return to the starting line, where their team-mates can perform emergency repairs. The first mummy to cross the finishing line with her/his/their is declared the winner.
